Using this document

In order to navigate this document easily please enable the bookmark tool view using the bookmark icon on the left of your screen:

The bookmark functions within the pdf allow easy navigation through large reports. Bookmarks can be clicked on like hyperlinks taking the user directly to the relevant section.

Those bookmarks with a plus sign next to them (+) can be expanded by clicking on the plus sign. You can minimise these entries again by clicking on the resulting minus sign (-).

In addition you can search through the document for any particular text by using the standard Microsoft shortcut (Ctrl + F) and enter the text you are looking for.

Interpretation of the data

- Species maps: The species maps show the location of protected, notable and Invasive non-native species grouped by taxon. The numbers in brackets adjacent to the species names relate to the grid ID shown on the maps. Records with a grid reference accuracy of 10m square or above are minimised to a 100m square. Where there are more than 100 grid IDs on a map the grid references will be minimised to 1km. The full grid reference can be found within the full record in this report or in the excel spreadsheet of raw data.
- Attribute data: Where available all attribute data is provided with the records. Sex and life stage information as well as the record type all allow greater interpretation of information available. However it is not always possible to provide this information.
- Species designation Status: The species designation information provided within this enquiry output is based on the best available information provided through the JNCC: Conservation designations of UK Taxa list. Information on the limitations to this list is available here: (<http://jncc.defra.gov.uk/page-3408>)
- Site/habitat data: Due to changes in the NBN web services we are currently unable to provide site and observation data from the NBN, this does not affect local sites. Information for statutory sites can be found at <http://www.natureonthemap.naturalengland.org.uk/MagicMap.aspx> and sites and NBN taxa observations at <https://spatial.nbnatlas.org>. (please be aware of the NBN Atlas guidance for using data <https://nbnatlas.org/help/guidance-using-data/>).
